

Jessie Wu

Dear Hiring Team:

I am a Junior Developer who loves what she does: design, working on a team and working well together, the process from pseudocode to product, and writing clean code.

I went into programming because I wanted to build and contribute to apps that make users' lives easier and more enjoyable. I believe this intrinsic interest, eye for design, and the technical skills I gained from Dev Bootcamp, a full stack web development program, make me a compatible and valuable candidate:

Technical Skills - for the final group project we presented at Dev Bootcamp, we used Ruby on Rails and postgresSQL in the back end and Javascript, HTML, and CSS for the front end. My contributions included designing all the wireframes, coding the markup for each page in HTML5 and CSS3, and optimizing user experience with user stories and Javascript (jQuery and Ajax).

Passion for Aesthetics - With each job, I tapped into my creative side: creating materials based on students' interests as an English teacher, designing the landing page as the junior designer at a trade school, and being responsible for designs in group projects during Dev Bootcamp.

Ability to Adjust - Imagine having to communicate effectively in Brazil or with developmentally disabled people. Because of my experience with working in diverse and unfamiliar environments, I am able to adjust and work effectively with people from different backgrounds and cultures in a fast-paced setting.

I plan to apply the skills I've gained in the past and expand on the ones I will acquire through the Junior Developer position. I am available for opportunities currently and you can reach me by email at jwu004@gmail.com and phone at 858.436.6458. Thank you in advance for your time and I look forward to hearing from you!

Sincerely,
Jessie Wu
